

Finding the Awesome Majesty of the Holy Spirit

We take for granted that we comprehend our faith because we say we believe, yet, oft times we find ourselves finding sanctuary in platitudes and clichés that fall far from the beauty of God. Finding the Grace and beauty of God isn't about competing with one another either, to prove ourselves worthy – if we had no worth we would not exist for God's love is evidenced every day in the continuation of life!

So as we celebrate Pentecost, how do we recognize the Holy Spirit? Is it always within us? Well in part it is for the breath of life and the spirit we possess are first evidenced proofs of God's Love and Presence within our lives, but how do we really find the Holy Spirit?

The Bible is our main source of the word of God. If one takes a journey through proverbs for example, with an open mind, which is hard to ignore when we read the word of God, we will find messages that show the incredible majesty of the Holy Spirit for within those proverbs you will find a message made for you that truly points to the specific space in your life at the time you read the word of God. Once, in secret, you confess to our Father your search for His wisdom, your search of your own soul to be more genuine, more honest, you will begin to see the incredible timelessness of our Father's message to us in both the Old and New Testaments!

We will begin to see in our daily lives, little things that our Father does to show us that He is with us once we have begun to frequent His word and seek His protection. I am always mindful of what Jesus said in regard to repetitive prayer and outward shows of faith, for we must seek our Father's Spirit in the same way we communicate with each other. Think about it, at a certain point in time, ought we not to accord to our Father the same direct approach we do to each other? Further, because our Father is so awesome it has been proven to me in my sojourn in this life, that seeking our Father through His word is the gate that Jesus was talking about. I can't say I always understand nor appreciate the lessons I experience – I do later in time when I am past particularly trying times and it has become a goal of mine to try and bring my understand closer to the moments when I am called on to show faith.

The Geico commercial where the boss says to the little geico, let's do an exercise in trust, I will fall backward and you catch me – in the end we, in our faith, are more like the geico who fears the worst. Thank goodness for God's love and understanding – we show fear and He does understand that our faith is weak – even Jesus understood it – after all that was one of the lessons about Peter and his denial of Jesus. The most important key is to keep returning to our Father through our faith in Jesus Christ and our continued consultations with the word of God.
